Now let's create another object so we can add speak to it as a method.
let cat = {
  name: "Miaou",
  color: "Orange",
  speak: speak

Then we create a new object called cat, with some, one, and some properties. We set the speak property of cat and assign it the speak function we created earlier. Then we create a method that we can use by referring to cat.speak(). Since we used the this keyword in the method, when we call on cat, it will access the cat object's properties. Let's see that now!

cat.speak();
// Output: Meow!

When we call the cat.speak method, it returns two properties from the cat object: this.speak (which is "speak") and this.name (which is "Miaou").
We can use the same speak function as a method to other objects too.

let dog = {
  name: "Bark",
  color: "Brown",
  speak: speak

let horse = {
  name: "Neigh",
  color: "Brown",
  speak: speak

dog.speak();
// Output: Woof! Woof!

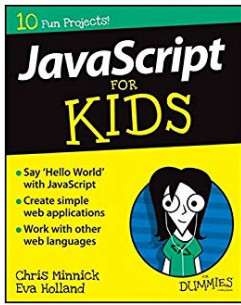

horse.speak();
// Output: Neigh! Neigh!
